Sermon points

1. Jesus commands us to "do good" to everyone, including our enemies and those who mistreat us. This requires loving all people unconditionally and proactively seeking to bring goodness into the world, rather than waiting for opportunities to arise.
2. Doing good means measuring every act and word against God's love and will before taking action. This practice may seem challenging, but it's an essential part of Christian discipleship and following Christ's teachings.
3. Becoming a disciple of Christ requires sacrificing personal control and allowing God to guide our lives. While this may seem daunting, the reward of being identified as a child of God far outweighs any perceived losses.
4. We should strive for Christian perfection by continuously taking steps to improve ourselves and become better Christians. This involves actively working towards removing sin from our lives and following God's will, even though we may stumble along the way.
5. Doing good to others, even when it's difficult or costly, is a fundamental aspect of Christian living. We are called to persist in doing good, regardless of the response we receive, knowing that our reward comes from God.
